Nancy Kline, Time to Think

Transformational Thinking

Do you, like many people, spend most of your working time in meetings, and find many of them unproductive and uninspiring?

Or are you a professional who facilitates development, learning or performance, who would like to hone your own skills in helping others to achieve? Or to deliver more engaging presentations, help people to resolve conflict, and bring out the best in their group problem-solving and creative abilities?

You can – with some simple yet profoundly impactful skills and tools that build upon your existing expertise.

What is the Time to Think Foundation Course?

This two day course is grounded in the Thinking Environment®, the unique and powerful framework for generative thinking developed by Nancy Kline of Time to Think.

When you have a Thinking Environment ...

- Employees feel engaged, respected, inspired to learn, to give and to be the best they can, wanting to collaborate more than they want to compete;
- People really can think for themselves and can help others to do the same;
- Diverse views and diversity of people are positively welcomed – and we need both for growth and sustainability;
- Relationships flourish and become more effortless, productive and fulfilling;
- Meetings of all kinds run better and result in real decisions because everyone has a part to play – and yet they take less time;
- Leadership is enabled, shown and welcomed at all levels and across all areas, not just at the top or in pockets;
- The thinking and everything that ensues from it throughout the organization has a direct and positive impact on personal and organizational performance.

If you want to get the best from EVERYONE creating the best conditions for the best thinking will help it to happen.

You'll gain proven and practical ideas and strategies on how to promote and introduce the Thinking Environment – or elements of it - into your own organisation or clients, surprising even the most sceptical of people!
